New Beginnings

With construction complete for 3 schools, a new era for the Piqua City Schools has begun. The previous buildings are in various states of demolition and that part of the project will soon be finished. At the time of printing this publication, the future of the previous sites has yet to be determined.

The beautiful new buildings help with innovative teaching so the students may have greater ease in learning. Staff and students have wonderful new and exciting opportunities available to them.

At Springcreek Primary, Leah Baumhauer, a Piqua graduate and 1st. grade teacher commented, "Our new building is wonderful! We actively enjoy and appreciate our new surroundings every day. We have had an amazing transformation from three primary buildings to two. We all felt a little anxious about having a larger building with more staff and more students, but, incredibly our relationships have only strengthened. Everyone has done a great job working together toward our common goal of teaching students in a positive environment."

Amanda Redinbo, also a Piqua graduate and 3rd grade teacher at Springcreek, said, "The reorganization has created a whole new teaching/learning environment. It's been a positive for our community as we see 9 buildings merge into 5. The students have adjusted well, and the staff has been inviting. The best part is we have eliminated so much trans-ism between the buildings, as we know each move sets a child back academically 3-6 months."

Mindy Gearhardt, principal at Washington Primary, reported that morale is very high and everyone loves the new school. The bigger building allows for small groups of students. The playground is spacious with more to do there. The routine of pick-ups and bus stops is running very smoothly after taking only one week for all to adjust. Absolutely everything is positive.

Nikki Ford, a teacher of 5th grade social studies at Piqua Central Intermediate School, said, "It has been great to see all of the students come together as one student body. One would never know that just last year they were in three separate schools and probably didn't know each other. Our new building is beautiful and we (students and staff) are all very proud of it. Combining the staff has allowed us all to learn from and work with teachers and staff that we haven't had the opportunity to do before. I think we are all looking forward to seeing the great things that are in store for us in the future."

With the huge building project now complete, the Piqua community will have many, many years of spectacular learning opportunities.

Everyone enjoyed dinner Saturday evening at the Piqua Country Club and brunch on Sunday along with a lot of reminiscing and learning about changes that have taken place in Piqua since our last reunion.

The class meets the third Wednesday of every month at the China East Restaurant on East Ash Street at 11:30 a.m., and encourages all classmates, spouses, and guests to come. No reservation required.
